Diplomas

Lindsay J. March

'Tis diploma time again. As your principal signs the many diplomas, he has time to think what a diploma means generally and what it may mean to each of the members of the class.

The diploma must mean something to employers because, for many kinds of work, the diploma is required. It is no wonder employers prefer high school graduates when one realizes these persons have completed more than two thousand separate assignments for various teachers. They have attended school hundreds of days, an achievement which is much like holding a steady job for four years.

Such accomplishment is evidence of some degree of dependability and is proof that one has learned to work with many people. The opportunities of taking responsibility for, and becoming a leader in, school activities is also important to employers. There are many advantages of guidance in education, vocational, and personal problems which the non-graduate does not enjoy.

What the diploma means to each individual, that person himself knows best. It may mean that he won the diploma as easily as possible. The certificate may mean that he did his best and that he took advantage of his opportunities to be somebody. School records measure the quality of each one's work.

Graduation to all marks the commencement of something greater—higher education or the beginning of one's life work. In any case, the diploma is a challenge to each graduate to live up to what is expected of the person who has had the advantages of a high-school education.

"Today We Follow; Tomorrow We Lead"

OUR class has an opportunity to go as far as our country has. Our country started under the leadership of England and remained there until it had a revolution. For several years after this it had a very uncertain standing, and then it started upward on a long hard road. It had its troubles, its wars, and its successes, but now it has become the leading nation of the world. Our class has the same opportunity. We have been under the leadership of our school, but now we are going to have our own revolution. We are going to be in that uncertain position. We are going to start that long upward climb, but if we plan to go to the top, we will need help during our troubles. We will have to follow our country's pattern. "IN GOD WE TRUST" became its favorite motto, even on minted coins. If we adopt the same slogan, we will achieve, as it did, leadership in our world of tomorrow.

The Hundredth Time

FOR the hundredth time, rows of Middleboro boys and girls have marched solemnly to the platform; for the hundredth time, they have eagerly received their diplomas; and for the hundredth time, a group of students stand on the uncertain threshold to the future. Styles have changed and the jitterbug has replaced the Charleston, but the future—the future hasn't changed. It still lies before us promising a multitude of things both good and bad, and as always, it lies uncertain. True, we, the class of 1950, have more opportunities than the class of 1850, but we will have to struggle for our goals just as they did then. Gallup polls prove that more of us will be going to schools of higher learning than ever before, but this only follows hand in hand with the raised standard of living. It isn't any easier to get a job now than it was then, but our possibilities are unlimited. Our schoolwork is neither harder nor easier than it was a hundred years ago, but we do have a wider variety of subjects to choose from. This is the centennial of graduating classes from an organized school system in the town of Middleboro, yet it is nothing but a point on the road of life which no one will remember except those who are graduating.

History of the Class of 1950

John Maltais

THE class of '50 started its career in Memorial High School in the autumn of 1946. For its freshman year the class elected Paul Callan president, Patricia Dodge vice-president, Carolyn Alger secretary, and William Kennedy treasurer. This year also marked the addition of Nancy Mercer to the class. Nancy transferred during the latter half of the year from a school in Connecticut. With sports, socials, and studies the class soon began to earn the unique and enviable position that it has today.

During the sophomore year the Class of '50 continued on the road of success and elected William Kennedy president, Bruce Matheson vice-president, Marjorie Smith secretary, and Elizabeth Howard treasurer. This year was also notable for the addition of three new students —Marilyn Kuechler, Wilbert Larson, and Richard Holt. It cannot be doubted that these three students contributed much to our class, each in his own way.

The Class of '50 as juniors began the third year of its high school life in September, 1948. For this memorable year Ray Wood was chosen president, Bruce Matheson vice-president, Betty Howard secretary, and Patricia Dodge treasurer. Also at various times during that year Edward Morrissey, Donald Garbitt, and Ann Kuppers became new members in our steadily growing student body.

In our junior year we became the first class in M.H.S. history to adopt a system of Class Savings. This plan was so designed that a student by paying fifty cents a month for two school years would have ten dollars at the end of his senior year to pay for personal graduation expenses, and that those not fully completing their payments would have to meet their expenses as they occurred out of their own pockets. A great deal of credit for the success of this Class Savings Program is due to its able manageress, Carolyn Alger, and her staff of collectors. Further, since this program has met with so much success in our class, it is reasonably safe to surmise that it will become a permanent institution in our dear old alma mater.

The great social event of our junior year was, of course, the Junior Prom. This formal dance took place April 29, 1949; and with Ned Barry and his New Englanders orchestra supplying the music, it turned out to be one of the best school functions of the year.

That long awaited day, the one that seemed ever so distant a few years before, finally arrived when we became seniors. This year will perhaps be more cherished by us than any other for it seemed to culminate all the friendships and treasured memories we had acquired during our happy days in M.H.S. Our class officers for this year were Bruce Matheson president, Ronald Falconeiri vice-president, Faith Stetson secretary, and Marjorie Smith treasurer.

Many of our bright, sunny week ends during the Fall were spent in attendance at the football games. There we had the opportunity of seeing the scintillating performances of many of our star athletes. We shall long remember the touchdown runs of Paul Roberts, the driving power of Ray Wood, the ability of Stuart Johnson and John Danielson to hold the line, and the cleverness of Dick Houlihan in calling the right signals at the right time. At these games we shall also remember the never faltering spirit of the cheering squad led by Betty Howard. Other senior members of the cheering squad were Frances Jones and Joan Zilonis. Then also in connection with the football season we cannot forget the colorful pageantry of the annual Thanksgiving Day games, the rallies, and the football dances.

The senior play, "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay," certainly showed that our class wasn't lacking in dramatic ability. The play was under the direction of Miss Rachael Alden and the members of the cast were: Bruce Matheson, Frances Jones, Anita Mendall, Frank Whitney, Pauline Saunders, Jason Andrews, Sophie Sowyrda, Walter McCrillis, Nicholas Martin, Patricia Dodge, Nancy Mercer, Frederick Gove, Carolyn Alger, Mafalda Iampietro, Barbara Armstrong, Ronald Falconeiri, and William Penniman. On the night of its presentation the play was attended by a full house and a very appreciative audience. Many thanks for the success of the play are also in order for those who performed many important though little noted duties behind the curtains.

The Class of '50 certainly possessed a rare ability for music judging by its large number of fine instrumentalists. Some of the musicians of note were pianists, Patricia Dodge and Carolyn Alger; trombone players Bruce Matheson, Alan Lindsay, Faith Stetson, and Frederick Gove; trumpet players, Pauline Saunders, Walter McCrillis, John Danielson, and Duane Wheeler; and drummer, William Penniman. These instrumentalists with the exception of the pianists performed at an assembly and at the band concert one of the most stirring concertos ever to be played by such a group. These accomplished music enthusiasts certainly deserve our highest praise.

The scholastic rating of the Class of '50 was commendable for it was the highest in the school's history. There were thirty-two members of our class enrolled as members in the Pro Merito Society. This was the most ever to have come from a single senior class. The reason for this, of course, was simple for in order to keep up to a valedictorian like Frances Jones and a salutatorian like Bruce Matheson the rest of the class just had to bear down and study.

During our four years of high school life many of the class had shown themselves outstanding in some particular field. For instance, in the literary field there was Jason Andrews, who was the hard working and capable editor of the "Sachem." Then there was Frances Jones, editor of the Newswriters' Club, who saw to it that interesting and informative articles appeared in the Middleboro High School Notes section of the Gazette. And last, but certainly not least, was Sophie Sowryda, editor of the yearbook, in whose able hands depended its great success. In the highly complex political field the President of the Student Council, Paul Callan, occupied the most prominent position. Paul did a good job of maintaining order and efficiency in our student government. Richard Picone also deserved our greatest admiration for he was chosen from among all the F.F.A. boys of the state to receive the coveted Star Farmer Award.

Just as the members of that first class to graduate from Middleboro High School, the Class of 1850, were pioneers in the Westward expansion of our great country, we the Class of 1950 must be pioneers in our own age. The atomic era we now live in is ever so much larger and more demanding than that former period in history; but if we proceed with the same indomitable spirit that these early pioneers did, we shall meet the challenge of our times with their same crowning success.

Class Prophecy for 1950

JASON ANDREWS, prominent Massachusetts Institute of Technology biologist, has discovered the basis of protoplasm. Protoplasm is considered the basis of all life.

DAVID BECKER has just bought controlling shares in the First National Chain. This will enable him to continue the chain into Mexico as he has planned.

ROBERT BOUTIN, President of Boutin Construction Company, has just announced that he was granted the contract for building a super highway from New York to San Francisco.

It has been announced that ROBERT CORTI has become second vice-president of United States Steel. This has climaxed his rapid climb in the business world.

RONALD FALCONEIRI, prominent Boston veterinary, is now residing in California. He was called there to care for one of Bing Crosby's ailing race horses.

FREDERICK BARRY GOVE, New York Times Correspondent has been awarded the Pulitzer Prize for journalism. His scoop was an interview with Joe Stalin at the Kremlin.

RICHARD HOULIHAN, Boston Celtic hoop ace, scored 1526 points this season. This sets an all time professional basketball scoring record.

The Coast Guard Cutter Northwind, under the command of Commander STUART JOHNSON, successfully rescued all the survivors of the sinking steamer "Victoria." This could bing him the Navy Cross.

RICHARD KYROUZ is now planning a network of super highways for the State of Massachusetts. He is consultant engineer for the State Highway Department.

A practical process of painless dentistry has been discovered. This revolutionary discovery was made by ALAN LINDSAY only after four years of hard research.

A tunnel connecting Wisconsin and Michigan is being constructed under Lake Michigan. The technical work for this extremely difficult job is being done by BRUCE MATHESON, world famous engineer.

WILLIAM PENNIMAN is now chief accountant for the Prudential Life Insurance Company. This job has him visiting the offices of the Company in several large eastern cities.

The office of ROBERT RILEY, the business manager for the John Hancock Life Insurance Company, is now located in the John Hancock Building in Boston. He is in charge of New England Sales.

The University of Notre Dame Athletic Department has announced that PAUL ROBERTS has been elected to succeed the retiring Frank Lahey as football coach. Roberts is expected to continue his fine coaching record at Notre Dame.

After his 27 wins - 3 losses pitching record, Boston Red Sox hurler ROBERT TECENO has been awarded the American League Most Valuable Player Award.

DUANE WHEELER, an employee of the New York State Accounting Department has been named Manager of the Department. This appointment came after Wheeler had been in the State's employ only two years.

RAYMOND WOOD is now travelling throughout the Mid-west as a salesman for the Wilson Sporting Goods Company. It is rumored that he may soon be promoted to the front office.

LESTER BRIGGS, JOHN HARTLEY, RICHARD MCNEIL and FREDERICK STAPLES have formed a cooperative truck garden. They are now making daily deliveries to the Faneuil Hall Market in Boston.

DANIEL DUCEY has become manager of the new Super A. & P. in Brockton. He was manager of the Taunton A. & P. when the appointment came.

NICHOLAS MARTIN, the best dressed man in the senior class is now residing in California. He is acting consultant for the men's wardrobe department of Warner Brothers Studio.

MELVIN HANSON is now connected with the art department of Esquire magazine. He has replaced Varga and is also making calendars on the side. GEORGE PROVONCHE, also connected with this department is attending beauty contests throughout the country seeking talent for Hanson's creations.

The stock shares of the Washington Redskins Football Team have soared with the acquisition of JOHN DANIELSON, All-American college ace. This should enhance their chances in the coming gridiron campaign.

Talk about your miracles! We hear that ANTHONY PAWLAK is a Captain in the Navy and has a girl in every port!

DONALD MOQUIN has made a name for himself in the economic world. He has devised a new plan which is a two day working week with more pay.

RICHARD CLARK has been named "inventor of the year" for his invention of a new type of radio. It even cooks his breakfast in the morning!

DOUGLAS EDWARDS we hear has just finished re-enacting the battle of Hastings as history teacher in Middleboro High School.

Barnum and Bailey's circus has recently announced the giving of a ten thousand dollar contract for ten years to a local boy named DONALD GARBITT. We hear this gives the clown section added zest!

The A & P has been taken over by our own BILL KENNEDY, however, DAVE BECKER and his First National is giving Bill stiff competition.

We hear that Cadillac sales have risen considerably since DONALD MCNEILL has taken over the agency. He says the Cadillac sells itself.

EDDIE MORRISSEY now has his own radio program entitled, "I Always Wanted to Play the Piano." We love his perseverance.

RICHARD PICONE has been appointed Secretary of Agriculture and immediately he has started a cooperative union. Good work, Dick.

What with the appointment of the new Secretary of Agriculture, DAVID BLANCHARD, LAURENCE COWAN, RICHARD HOLT, and JAMES ORRAL have started their own movement. Already potatoes are down three cents. We always knew you could do it boys!

The Boston Marathon was won this year by our own RICHARD RAY. Dick broke the previous record formally held by another M.H.S. graduate, ALLAN NORRIS. The "Leaper" took defeat graciously as usual.

MORGAN STETS is currently starring in the new MGM picture, "The Sheik of Araby." We understand Morgan takes the part of the "Sheik." Good old M.H.S. training.

FRANK WHITNEY has recently produced another great Broadway show. We understand that it is a sequel to the "Red Shoes" entitled "The Red Hair." We hear he's doing O. Kay!

Bashful JOHN ARNOLD is teaching in Vassar. We understand that his Phys. Ed. class has established a new attendance record. Small wonder!

PAUL CALLAN has been appointed Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. He says he owes it all to his training as president of the Student Council of M.H.S.

JAMES GOTHAM who was always interested in flowers has developed a new variety. He calls it "The Gotham Rose."

WILBERT LARSON has been doing quite a few things since he left Middleboro High School. He has just written a new book entitled, "How To Do Nothing In One Easy Lesson."

ALFRED DE ARRUDA who has just opened up his dairy farm has given Hood's Milk stiff competition. We hear that milk bottle production has gone sky high! Good work Al!

From reliable sources GEORGE HARTLEY is to be our next president. He is currently head of the largest political machine in the country. He says he owes all his success to Mr. Bernard.

Quiet JOHN MALTAIS has been given the award for being the United States most successful farmer. We hear he plans to be appointed Secretary of Agriculture next year. Good luck, John!

TIMOTHY MONTGOMERY and JOHN MORGAN have decided to go out and see the world. The last we heard they had hit Bridgewater. Keep going, boys!

WALTER MCCRILLIS has recently taken over as the head of West Point. We hear his discipline is terrific!

ROBERT WILSON, RICHARD TANGUAY and ANTHONY SILVIA have really gone in for farming. Their motto is, "if it grows, we have it."

JOANNE BAKER, who made the first successful rocket flight to the moon, is now on the planet Mars. From last report she has convinced the Emperor to stop throwing those flying saucers which have mystified the earth since way back in 1950.

That well-known fashion illustrator for Vogue, ANN KUPPERS, has been doing a little designing on the side. She has revolutionized fashion with a design called "The Old Look," by which woman looks like a woman, and man looks at woman. It seems to be becoming popular for some reason.

ANITA MENDALL is a free lance commercial artist. She prefers it that way because she can get around more and see more people. Anita, who lives on "Coke" only, does, however, do all the ads and billboards for that company in appreciation to them for inventing "coke."

FRANCES GREENE, Lord and Taylor's number one buyer is in Paris selecting America's clothes for next year. Says Fran, "It's more darn fun spending all this money that belongs to someone else!"

JOAN ZILONIS is the Florence Nightingale of Mass. General Hospital where she not only takes care of her patients' medicinal needs, but she also sings them to sleep every night.

In her dark mysterious laboratory, SOPHIE SOWYRDA, bacteriologist at large (bug researcher, that is) is about to reveal her discoveries on the life and loves of the American wood tick. Scientists are waiting with bated breath for the release of this pertinent data.

Fibber McGee, when he picks up his telephone, no longer says "Is that you Myrt?" No, he now says "Is that you, Babe?" since ELINOR GATES has become a telephone operator.

BETTY ERWIN has been made head clerk in the First National Bank of Boston. The reason for her promotion was due to her fine detective work in solving the series of Brink's robberies that started in New England some years ago.

KATHY POWERS and BARBARA SMITH are doing a thriving business with their nurses clinic. One goes out collecting patients from door to door, and the other patches them up. They hope to have a chain of clinics across the country within a few years.

When a call came from the government for registered nurses, NANCY RICE immediately volunteered her services. The nurses were assigned to various sections of the country to serve as general medical supervisors over each district. Nancy is now in California administering medicine to Van Johnson, Clark Gable, and Kirk Douglas who, she says, will never get well if she can help it.

We see a huge pile of letters, gold pieces, blue ribbons and medals, on top of which sits the famous authoress of the 20th Century, ELIZABETH HOWARD. Contemplating the rewards of her latest best seller, "When Banana Peels are Falling, I ll Come Slipping Back to You," she knows her name will evermore be remembered in the field of literature.

JOAN DUPRE has become NOREEN O'MELIA's partner. Joannie is a surgical nurse, and Noreen, as a biology teacher has need of such an associate. Together they have revealed many new facts concerning the gullet of the paramecium, and are at present finishing various tests on one of their old high school classmates to prove that he is the "Missing Link."

JANET SANTIN, recently appointed child specialist at John Hopkins Hospital, tells the doctrine she follows which marks her success in her field, "The best way to develop a child's character is to apply a pat on the back often and low enough."

JEANNE MATHEWS, who went to Washington after graduation, has been named Secretary of the Year by the President's Cabinet. She is the first secretary to take less than five years to type up the U. S. Census.

CLAIRE CALDWELL, and VIOLA SHOWERS with their husbands have set up housekeeping in trailers and are doing what they always wanted to do—travel the world.

HAZEL GUIDABONI has been offered the job of heading the Home Ec. department of the new high school. She has readily accepted and, remembering her own days at M.H.S., she promises a piece of her famous fudge cake as a bonus to those who will put their milk bottles where they belong each day.

LOIS WASHBURN whose fine work as a missionary has taken her to deepest, darkest Africa, is bringing many sheep into the fold there, and the flame of Christianity in that savage domain is kindled by this worthy missionary.

Whenever you're in New York, anyone will tell you the best place to find a bite to eat. The most popular cafe, the one with the tastiest food is waiting for you under the proprietorship of KATHY SYLVIA and her N. Y. cousin.

JANE WHITEHEAD, registered nurse is currently the sensation of St. Luke's Hospital. Before an operation she tells the patient a joke and her laughing gas puts him to sleep. Thus she saves the hospital money and makes taking anesthetics a pleasure.

DOLORES VERONESI announces that there is an empty attic for rent. She is moving out, since her first art exhibition was such a success. Special rates are offered to struggling artists.

CAROLYN ALGER, that mighty tycoon of Wall Street has recently cornered the monopoly on Steam Ship lines. She announces that in the 1990 reunion of the Class of '50, the class trip will be around the world, and all former students will travel free of charge in the best style in the Alger steam boats.

FRANNY JONES, so famous in high school days, has acquired new fame and this week, she was named Mrs. America. She has thirteen children, a baker's dozen. It is believed she was influenced by a movie she once saw called "Cheaper by the Dozen."

BARBARA ARMSTRONG after completing her course at Mass. State has settled down to teaching. Her pupils find it difficult to get a word in edge-wise.

Peeking behind the glass window, holding up baby for papa to see is LORRAINE DUTRA who along with EVELYN LITTLE, you remember her, the shy one, has charge of Pediatrics, Infant Department to you, at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Who's that coming down the street? Why it's KATHLEEN QUAGEN with her three sets of twins. Kathy our first girl to be married had a head start on the rest of us.

Too bad about Harry James. He didn't have a chance after PAULINE SAUNDERS got into the swing of things.

Since MARJORIE SMITH has become private secretary to the President of the United States, she hasn't had time for her other outside interests. Too bad fellows.

Speaking about private secretaries, did you know that JEAN SHAW has opened a school for such and is stressing charm and poise as a secretary's best assets.

ANN WHITMORE, world famous cover girl and model has not forgotten her old friends and we can say "I knew her when."

Did you hear the latest about SHIRLEY FULLER? It seems that Eleanor Roosevelt needed a secretary to accompany her on her travels. Guess who got the job?

DAISY HAYNES who got her start as a secretary now owns her own business. It seems that under that shy smile lurks a woman of steel.

If you're ever down by the Blue Grass country, drop in and see NATALIE LANG. She owns her own horse farm and besides that she is secretary to the local Chamber of Commerce.

You know, FATHIE STETSON is private secretary to the big boss on Station WBZ. She also helps out in a pinch by singing. Of course, she has a little trouble reaching the mike, but for her any "Mike" would come down a peg or two.

If you ever want any information from the F.B.I., just write to your old classmate LILLIAN TORNARI. She is in charge of the entire filing system. Her M.H.S. training sure came in handy.

MUFFY (Mafalda to you) IAMPIETRO is now medical secretary to the famous Doctor Kildare, where it is rumored that it's her voice we hear "calling Dr. Kildare."

Bonwit Teller has a new and "Tres Chic" personnel in the persons of ELEANOR MEKELONES and NANCY MERCER famous fashion predictors of things to come. It is rumored they are going in for designing men—'s wear.

MURIEL GLOVER is first Congresswoman of Massachusetts. She got her start by taking a civil service exam which put her in the public eye. Her right hand man is BETTY GUIDABONI who goes around patting all the babies on the head winning the everlasting approval of their mommies.

They say MARILYN KUECHLER is one of the best nurses you ever saw. It seems she knows just how to take your pulse. What a way to die!

PAT DODGE is in the movie business modeling Esther William's bathing suits. (Whistle or wolf call.)

It seems Plymouth Shoe has two new members added to its office staff. IRENE PICARD and PRISCILLA TINKHAM have taken over the filing system.

After devising a new machine that automatically changes short hand into long hand, ANN BRADFORD has retired to her estate in South Middleboro where she hopes to perfect an automatic water drinker.

BARBARA LEARY has been awarded the Legion of Honor for her quick thinking action in decoding a sudden message that came over the wire while she was on duty as telephone operator for Boston Exchange and sending for the marines. The famous heroine said to reporters gathered at her porch—"It was nothing—just run of the MILL."

The Last Will and Testament of the Class of 1950

WE of the Senior class, residing in Memorial High School, in Middleboro, in the County of Plymouth, and the State of Massachusetts, being the ONLY class of sound mind and disposing memory, do make, ordain, promulgate, and declare this to be our Last Will and Testament.

After payment of just debts, we bequeath our estate as follows:

To the Class of 1951—a gentle hint, which is to read our latest book, How to Win Friends and Influence School Teachers. The information contained within will prove invaluable.

To the Class of 1952—Our superfluous ingenuity on the subject of Etiquette. "A word to the wise is sufficient."

To the Class of 1953—Our condolences in the difficulties you will encounter in atempting to maintain the standard set by the Class of 1950.

To the Athletic Department—The Lions' Club trophy and a record score of forty to fourteen to go with it.

To the custodians of our majestic edifice—Chutes leading to the furnace from all waste paper baskets, thus eliminating the tedious hours spent in emptying them.

To the future officers of the Senior Class—Our vice-president's unopened book on "Parliamentary Law."

To Miss Erickson—Ten years' supply of dustless chalk and a General Electric dust collector to eliminate all the dust previously accumulated.

To all study halls—Upon their becoming quiescent, Jane Whitehead's expressions of mirth.

To all thespian enthusiasts—The talent possessed by those who took part in the recent smash hit on Nickerson Avenue, "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay."

To the athletic managers—Robert Riley's booklet, (selling for $.50) "The Tricks of the Trade."

To Miss Brier—A new set of records on la pronunciation et intonation correcte du francais to be played to all those who have yet to accomplish the abysmal task of mastering that language of the lover—French.

To potential trackmen—"The Leaper" Norris' records as a goal to reach. (A gentle hint—he eats Wheaties!)

To those who abhor study halls—Bruce Matheson's collection of stencils for teachers' signatures.

To anyone who dares—Robert Corti's miraculous feat of scaling the cliff at Bridge Hill, and yet surviving.

To the sophisticated girls of the Junior Class—The modesty of Shirley Fuller.

To self-conscious wallflowers—Bill Kennedy's and David Becker's dancing ability.

To Nancy Dalhquist—The conservative actions of Lois Washburn. May you make good use of them.

To Miriam Towne—The sweet reminiscences of William Penniman, Walter McCrillis, Stuart Johnson, and Allen Norris.

We whose names are hereunto subscribed do certify that John Danielson, the representative and testator of such, subscribed his name to this instrument in our presence and in the presence of each other, and declared at the same time in our presence and hearing, that this instrument was the Last Will and Testament of the Senior Class of 1950, residing in Memorial High School, in Middleboro, in the County of Plymouth, and the State of Massachusetts, and we at his request sign our names hereto in his presence as attesting witnesses.

SALUTATORY

Fifty Years of Baseball

SUPERINTENDENT Cushing, School Officials, Principal March, Faculty, Parents, and Friends:

We, the Class of 1950, realize our indebtedness to each of you for your patient coaching thus far. To repay this debt we are not going to be content with mere oral "thank you's," but rather we hope to demonstrate our appreciation by doing our best to become good citizens.

Bruce Matheson

ALTHOUGH I could have chosen a sport that has seen more changes during the past fifty years, I have chosen baseball because it is the most typically American. Since it originated in America it has gradually become a part of our everyday lives, with world series headlines taking precedence over international news. What neighborhood is without its sandlot—what boy doesn't know the names and averages of the major leaguers better than his school lessons? As Robert Smith said, "There is nothing in the world like baseball; and baseball, in its proper form, exists only among Americans!

If you had seen a game played in 1900 and then could have compared it to one played in 1950, you would have noticed very little difference. The rules have not been altered greatly and the style of play has changed only slightly. The big difference is behind the scenes. In short, baseball has become big business during the half century.

To start with, salaries have changed drastically. Prior to the 1920's, salaries were relatively low. Honus Wagner, one of the greatest shortstops of all time, received only $10,000 for his services in 1903. This salary, meagre by today's standards, made him the highest paid player in the league. Rube Waddell, the best pitcher in the American League during the 1900's, was paid only $3,000 a year by Philadelphia. Salaries gradually began to rise, however, and when Babe Ruth received $80,000 at his peak in the 1920's, it was considered unmatchable. Even this has been topped in our time, with Joe DiMaggio getting $100,000 for the 1950 season and Ted Williams a cool $125,000.

To supply themselves with available new talent, the major league clubs have established intricate farm systems. "Sport Life" has found that all these farm teams together form 58 minor leagues operating in 438 cities and employing 9,000 players. In 1949, 142 of the latter total were recalled by major league clubs, 118 were purchased, and 21 were drafted. With such a crop of rookies, it is easy to see why the major leagues are able to produce the best brand of baseball.

In addition to salaries and farm systems, attendance and fan interest has steadily increased since 1900. This has been due to a number of factors. Club owners pay huge bonuses to obtain the contracts of players like Robin Roberts of the Phils, not only to win ball games, but also to draw the crowds. Fans get a great deal of delight in watching a highly paid ballplayer knock the cover off the ball or notch ten strikeouts. In fact they seem to get more fun out of giving the bronx cheer to a $125,000 a year star than to a mediocre player. Besides the lure of the game and its stars, owners had to entice fans by starting such institutions as night games and ladies' days. There are many people who are unable to attend day games and others who dislike day baseball to whom night games are just what the doctor ordered. Many women, seeing their first game on ladies' day, are persuaded to come again even when they must pay. Even though you can't attend the ball park too frequently, there are still radio and television to keep you in contact with your favorite sport.

The second major change in baseball has been the acceptance of negro players in the organized leagues. Before October 23, 1945, there were

"Jim Crow" conditions throughout the organized leagues. The only possible way a negro player could participate professionally was to sign with an all-negro club. The first and most famous of these all-colored teams was the Cuban Giants, originally made up of the dining-room crew of the Argyle Hotel in Babylon, Long Island, and managed by the headwaiter, Frank Thompson. The ironical thing about these "Jim Crow" conditions was that neither the colored teams nor their players were inferior to those of the whites. The Mohawk Giants shut out Walter Johnson's All-Stars in a post-season game in 1914. The Giants' pitcher was a man named Wickware, who never played a major league game, and who came from Johnson's home town. Wickware struck out seventeen of Johnson's big-league teammates. In 1915 Cyclone Joe Williams, pitcher for the Lincoln Giants, pitched and won two games against the champion Phillies. These two games raised such a fuss that there were no more meetings between complete big-league teams and Negro teams. The leagues adopted a ruling that no more than four members of any one team could play together in post-season games. In this way the prestige of the big-name teams was protected, and those who had seen a dire threat to our social structure in the way white champions were being defeated by colored men could sit back and breathe easily for awhile.

On October 23, 1945, President Hector Racine of the Montreal Baseball Club announced the signing of a Negro player named John Roosevelt Robinson. The Montreal team was the top rung in the ladder of Brooklyn Dodger farms, and the next logical move, if Robinson were to succeed, would be to move him to Brooklyn. As you are aware. Jackie made "Rookie of the Year" honors in 1947 and has not faltered once. Other negro players such as Sammy Jethroe of the Braves and Larry Doby of the Indians have made the grade, and it appears that negroes have come to be rated on their ability alone.

No doubt baseball will see in the future other changes that I have not mentioned, but a man will always be able to watch a game, forget his troubles for a few hours, and be as young again as when he first stepped nervously to the batter's box. Above all else, it will never cease to be the American game.

VALEDICTORY

The Progress of Education — 50 Years

FOR the past four years we of the class of 1950 have shared temporary success and failure. Tonight we realize that the time has come for each to decide the individual pathway of his future. With heavy hearts we acknowledge the fact that we must say good-bye; but though we leave much behind, we take much with us. So with high hope we look to the future, fully aware that having followed faithfully, we may lead capably.

Frances Jones

EDUCATION is a shadow cast by society. Educational changes are a reflection of society and its characteristics. Therefore, you as society have had a great deal to do with the progress of education. Most of us realize that the problems of American citizens today are far more complicated than they were five decades ago. But do we realize how much these problems have affected the student? Because of the increased complexity in our age of persuasion and propaganda, students today must have a wider field of knowledge and keener power of analysis if they are to succeed.

It would be impossible to consider in detail the history of education during the past fifty years. I will attempt to bring to your attention only the high points and main trends. Changes? Yes, indeed. EDUCATION HAS SEEN

MANY CHANGES IN THE PAST FIFTY YEARS. As we review this period our first impressions are those of expansion and diversification. We find that there have been certain definite curricular changes. For example, the tools of learning, such as books, have not only increased in number but have also improved in quality. Furthermore, the importance of supervised study and organized guidance, and the place of extra-curricular activities are recognized. You might be interested to know that there are ten times as many pupils going to high school today and six times as many going to college. However, education is getting away from numbers as more and more emphasis is being placed on the INDIVIDUAL. Today the American school system seeks to educate all the children of all the people. Students are considered in the light of their varying tastes and capacities. A booklet put out by the Federal Security Agency, Office of Education, has best expressed this consideration of the individual in the concise statement, "Look for the person in the student." Even the role of democracy has found room for expansion in education. Today the training for citizenship and development of character is stressed more than ever before.

Just as we have seen improvements in the school's curriculum, so also we discover better methods in training teachers. Replacing the two-year normal school of past generations is the four-year teachers' college. As a result of this change, teaching has been elevated so that it is now recognized as a profession.

The progress of our school system today has been aided greatly by various educational techniques and programs. One of the increasingly important features in the scientific field is that of audio-visual instruction. This method ranges all the way from teaching with the use of educational films and recordings to participation in field trips. As for the other educational aids, one cannot overestimate the advantages of a well-rounded testing program. This comparatively new program measures effectiveness of instruction. Also, in addition to measuring progress it is used to diagnose pupil difficulties and aid successful guidance programs. These guidance programs, which help the future planning of students, are continually growing in importance. In the present competitive world there is a definite place for them with educational qualifications for positions steadily rising. Although a grammar education was adequate yesterday, today a high school diploma is essential.

In reviewing the changes in education during the past fifty years, we have accepted the idea that society has been the most influencial factor. Indeed, social, economic, and political aspects all eventually affect our schools. At the halfway point in this century scientific developments are more numerous and varied than ever before. Likewise, we find the same is true of educational influences and agencies. However, this is not enough. Progress in education has not come to a standstill. It must keep up with society in adventure appeal by moving more swiftly than the automobile or the airplane. It must keep up with society in eye appeal by compelling more attention than the moving picture or television set. And above all it must keep up with society in ear appeal by speaking more loudly than the radio.

From following the progress of education during the past fifty years we have come to realize with professor John Dewey that, "The school is not preparation for life: it is life."

Ode

Verse I

THE sun's descent in evening is calling us away
To bear the lamp of knowledge into the unknown night.
The misty dawn at birth of youth has grown to noon of day,
And now we hear the hour in life which men may call the height,
So eagerly prepared to gain through knowledge, truth, and might.

Verse II

The future's road is beckoning, the sun completes her climb,
And we at last must part from thee, dear M.H.S., our guide,
To make our mark, distinct and true, upon the sands of time.
You've led us to this hour at hand; still with upward stride
Till our path ends in shadowed night, your hope will e'er abide.

6. Problems—Behave, Nancy!

Senior Week

(Excerpts from the Newswriters' Club Article.)

ON Friday, June 9th, at 8:20 A.M., Last Chapel will take place in the Walter Sampson Auditorium of the high school. Part of the program will be composed of musical selections by the a capella choir, under the direction of Luther Churchill, and a trumpet solo by Pauline Saunders. Invocation and benediction by Father John Welsh, pastor of the Sacred Heart Church, will bring the appropriate serious mood to the program. The guest speaker for the Last Chapel will be Professor S. Ralph Harlow, Professor of Sociology at Smith College. His topic will be "Beyond Knowledge." The senior class will be led into the auditorium by the class marshals, Anita Mendall and David Becker. The class ode for this occasion is being prepared by Patricia Dodge.

On Sunday, June 11, the Baccalaureate activities will take place at the Baptist Church promptly at 4:00 P.M.

The Class Trip comes on June 12, when the seniors will travel to Oak Bluffs. Buses, hired from Almeida, will leave the high school at 7:45 A.M. for New Bedford. There the class will catch the 8:45 A.M. boat which reaches Oak Bluffs at 11:00 A.M. On returning the class will leave the island at 6:30 P.M., expecting to reach New Bedford at 8:45 P.M. and Middleboro by at least 9:30 P.M.

Tuesday, June 13, at 5:45 P.M., the Banquet will be held in the high school gymnasium. It will be catered by Holmes and Young of Carver. The menu will consist of: cranberry juice or fruit cup, celery, olives and cranberry sauce, green salad double crust solid meat chicken pie, served family style, mashed potatoes, chicken gravy, birdseye peas, banana fritters with cherry sauce, home made rolls and butter, home made cookies, and assorted ice cream, and coffee. Following the meal, there will be four after-dinner speakers. They are: John Danielson, Patricia Dodge, Frederick Gove and Marjorie Smith.

The Class Night activities will begin at 8:00 P.M. in the Walter Sampson Auditorium, following the banquet. The feature attraction for the evening will be an old time minstrel show which is under the direction of Frank Whitney.

The Graduation exercises will start at 8:00 P.M. Wednesday evening, June 14, in the Town Hall. The seniors will march into the hall arrayed in their blue and white caps and gowns led by the class marshals.

Climaxing the end of Senior Week is the Reception, held on Friday evening, June 16. Following the grand march, there will be a reception line when the seniors will be standing in a semi-circle around the hall with the four class officers in the middle. From 10 to 10:30 there will be intermission. Dancing will follow and continue until 1:00 A.M. Music for the reception will be played by Herby Wayne and his Orchestra.

All needed decorations for Senior Week are under the able direction of Mrs. Sylvia Matheson, assisted by senior art students.

THE 1949 football team of Memorial High School turned up with an excellent season this year. With the co-captains Raymond Wood and Paul Roberts running, punting, place kicking, and passing, the team was steered to a record of six victories and three defeats. Not enough mention can be made of the brain work used by quarterback Richard Houlihan. However, he was helped by a very strong line and by two very capable ends, Paul Callan and Robert Corti. Bob was the highest scoring member of the team. As a whole, the team finished the season with a bang by beating Bridgewater on Thanksgiving morning. Middleboro has had two legs on the Lions Club Trophy already, so by the victory this year, Middleboro retired the trophy.

OUR basketball team this year did not live up to our high expectations, but, nevertheless, they did a fairly good job. The records of M.H.S. teams of previous years have been hard to equal. The team started the season right with four straight wins; but after meeting our old Nemesis, Plymouth, we promptly went awry. The captain, Richard Houlihan, was the only senior member who started regularly. However, we have one consolation, for next year's team will be experienced and should come through with an excellent season. Our record for the regular season was seven wins and nine defeats. In the tournament, we met Plymouth once again and found ourselves promptly out.

THE Memorial High Baseball team came through this year with a record season climaxed by the winning of the Old Colony League Crown. Led by the ace hurling of Senior Bob Teceno, who has a record of five wins and no losses, and the equally good pitching of Junior Boyd Iseminger, who has a record of four wins and one loss, the team worked their way to the top of the league by defeating first place Whitman to break a prevailing tie. Much of the credit, however, belongs to the hard hitting of Co-Captains Paul Roberts and Bob Corti, and Junior Bob Brown. All totaled, the team won nine and lost one for a near perfect record. During June, play-offs for the South Shore Championship were held with M.H.S. putting its best foot forward.

LIGHTS

There's magic in lights . . . add a light here, place a spotlight there, and your portrait takes on the appearance of real form and individuality.

Your Vantine photographer knows best how to secure the sharply etched photograph your engraver desires of the important senior year . . . The victories of the athletic teams . . . The brilliance of social occasions . . . The Prom . . . The plays . . . The debates . . . The expression of everyday life on the campus.

That personalized portraits by Vantine are important is attested to by the fact that over 300 schools and colleges repeatedly entrust their photographic work to Vantine.
